IS PRESIDENT HARRISON MAKING A FATAL MISTAKE?

A writer in the Madison Journal who has the dyspepsia this hot weather, writes an article under the foregoing headlines, in which he says:

"The above is a somewhat startling question, and yet it is one of much importance to republicans. While every fair minded man must concede that President Harrison is giving an acceptable administration, and while it will be generally admitted that his appointments are not only generally unobjectionable, but good, yet upon one point it seems to me that he is making a mistake so serious, that it is likely to greatly endanger the success of his party at the next election, if it does not prove absolutely fatal. I allude to the question of civil service reform."

If a Democrat did not write that article, then it must have been a mugwump, or possibly one who takes such an unselfish interest in politics that he doesn't care which party is up or which is down. Half-breeds generally write and talk in that manner. But the Journal writer not only wants Harrison to follow Cleveland's example in allowing republicans to serve out their time (?) but he wants the republican president to appoint democrats to office! "This Observer," as he styles himself, observes only one side of the question—the democratic side.

We find thousands of demands just like this one. I observe, when Cleveland has been capable and honest republican officials by the thousands, without any excuse whatever except that they were republicans, this partisan and self-righteous observer, thought that was splendid civil service reform; and now that Harrison is turning out partisan democrats and putting competent and good republicans in their places, he is making a mistake.

The best civil service that can be adopted is that which puts good men and loyal friends in office. That Harrison is doing, and in so doing is fulfilling the law.

THE GRAND ENGAGEMENT.

There is a good deal of foolishness going on in regard to the grand army encampment being held in Milwaukee. It seems from the Sentinel that all preparations for holding the encampment have been stopped. The report has it that "this action was determined upon at a meeting of the executive council Monday night, and was brought about by the emphatic position assumed by Mayor Brown, that not a cent more of the special tax should be spent until there were ample assurance that the grand army en masse was coming to Milwaukee in August. The council also decided at once to resume work on a vigorous scale, as soon as an assurance was forthcoming. In a nutshell the situation is this: If the state department commanders insist on discouraging general attendance because the railroads refuse a one cent rate, the council will rescind its invitation; if they do not issue their threatened order, then everybody will turn out with a will. The whole question will be settled within a few days. Thus the executive council is in the mire, with General Warner a thousand miles away—off among the Sioux Indians. General Chapman talks of mounting a horse on the border of the Indian country and go in search of the general and get him to settle the difficulty. There has been a good deal of the boys' play about this encampment business. Between the one-cent rate and the question of limiting the invitation to the encampment, there has been lots of trouble—more than was ever before known connected with the location of an encampment.

The Fond du Lac grand army post made a mistake in dropping General Bragg from the roll of membership. Of course it is none of the Gazette's business what the grand army post of Fond du Lac does, but it would seem to be a fair-minded man that the general should have been retained. General Bragg did good service in the civil war, and was as brave and loyal as any republican; and when he was first elected to congress the members of the Gazette will remember how ready and courageous he fought the rebel claim movement to the house, when by that brave act of his he incurred the displeasure of all the brigadiers in the house, and the opposition of the radical democratic press of the north. The Gazette then defended General Bragg against the attacks of his party enemies, and it now defends him against the prejudices and malice of the Fond du Lac post. The post should remember that not more than four years ago a postmaster was to be appointed at Prairie du Chien. Cleveland was president and a one-legged republican soldier had held the office for twenty years, and his time had expired. A democratic editor secured the office, and under ordinary circumstances should have received the appointment. This republican postmaster lost his leg on one of the bloody fields when General Bragg did good service. When the little general heard of the effort to displace him, he interposed a veto, and in supporting this republican for reappointment, he incurred the hostility of many democratic papers. All this should be remembered by those who are now fighting General Bragg. Of course his politics is bad, but a good many worthy men have had politics—bad in the estimation of a republican. But General Bragg made an honorable record in war, and for this he should always receive credit.

When Governor Nichols issued his proclamation against the prize fight he didn't mean it. He knew very well that Sullivan and Kilrain could not be frightened by a little proclamation.

People have lost all confidence in Mr. Kilrain. He let the opportunity to do the country a good service slip through his fingers.

The governor of Louisiana had his eye on the prize fighters just as a Chicago detective eyes a murderer.

IN LIGHTER VEIN.

A Philadelphia Female Weds Her Sixth Husband.
"My man is too lucky to come himself, so please give me a marriage certificate," said (as related by a Philadelphia paper) a chippy dame no more than thirty-two years of age—as men ages—as she stepped into Marriage License Clerk Bird's office one day last week.

"Certainly," said the clerk. He reached for a pile of papers, and, looking at the calendar, remarked: "Sixth."
"No, only the sixth," put in the female.
"Yes, you are; I've only had five, and this is the sixth," said the woman to the clerk's surprise.

"Oh, I meant the day of the month," laughingly replied the clerk.
"This one is a darling and I'll try and raise him," said the woman. "He's a clerk in a dry goods store, and he never sits down for fear he'll crease his pants, and make them bag at the knees. But I'll give him a lesson. I'm in awful hard luck with men. Soon as I get them fixed I lose them. No. 1 was such a nice man. He died with consumption. When he died he had seven yards of porous plaster wrapped about him. No. 2 was a very nice man. He worked in a powder factory. Just my luck. When he was blown up he died not enough of him left to make a hair broom. No. 3 was also a nice man. He followed the sea, and they told me a whale swallowed him up. No. 4 was a nice man, too. He was a book agent. Oh, he could talk so well. I used to go to his house and listen to him. He bought a divorce out in Illinois and sent it to me. No. 5 was a nice man. I worshipped that fellow. An old politician. He stayed out late at the caucuses. He said he was trying to get a contract to clean the streets, and dear knows they need it, don't they? Well, he died of enlargement of the head. Now hurry up with that paper. No. 6 is such a nice fellow, but he might change his mind."

She took the paper and hurried up to the store, and when No. 6 came out he marched off to his doom.

QUEER PATENTS.

A Few Odd Things That American Inventors Have Turned Out.
There is a claim in the patent office for a patent on the Lord's prayer, the specifications being that the repetition of the said "prayer" in a loud tone of voice will cure stammering.

Among odd inventions are chicken hoppers which walk the chicken right out of the garden when she tries to scratch; the bee-moth, which automatically shuts up the bee hives when the bees go to roost; the tapeworm fish hook, which speaks for itself; the educational balloon, a toy balloon with a map of the world on its surface; side-hill annihilators, stills to fit on the down-hill legs of a horse when he is plowing on a side hill; and the hen-surrier, a device that drops the newly laid egg through the bottom of the nest, with intent to beguile and wheedle the hen into immediately laying another.

One of the latest inventions is an automatic bath tub, which starts the hot and cold water at a given moment in the morning to which it had been set, maintains exactly the right temperature of it by graduating the flow of water, rings a bell when all is ready, and two minutes later suddenly drops the sleeper's pillow about a foot and turns him out.

FASHIONS OF EARLY SUMMER.

Toques are worn more pointed in front. Austrian feather trimmings may be worn on evening gowns.
Bonnets of white and rose tulle are decorated with roses. The eglantine is the favorite.

Round waists and belts are slowly but surely displacing pointed bodices and basques.

Black hats and bonnets are trimmed with the yellow mimosa, a favorite trimming for this spring.

With dresses of pale green crepe de chine black gloves and ribbons are now worn by the fashionable.

Many straight skirts are plaited on to the belt. They are more stylish, however, if shirred three or four inches deep and drawn to fit the foundation skirt.

The new jerseys are made in many different ways, resembling in cut and style the most fashionable bodices of the directoire, empire, and Josephine eras.

The shepherdess hats of dark nurlanted straw, wreathed with Persian gauze and trimmed with violets, primroses, and jonquils are worn by young ladies.

Light and heavy stuffs are frequently used in combination. Thus tulle is used while thin gauze is combined with gold or silver-shot moire.

Small fancy straw bonnets, toques, turbans, and large, low-crowned round hats, and the English turban seem to be competing for first place.

Favorite colors in millinery are pale and deep yellow shades, greens both light and dark, gray, and new and old silver and brown, lovely rose dyes, ranging from the shrim pink to damask.

Many of the stylish new gingham gowns will cost more than a gown made entirely of silk. They are lined with silk, and so elaborately embellished that the total cost amounts to a good deal.

Bonnet crown pieces are richly wrought with beading or network in scrolls or are adorned with flowers. Some are made of the gilt and copper crowns are very expensive and by daylight present a very brilliant effect.

The parasol is showing up in gay colors. The lace parasols in black lace and in white, with coral, ivory, amber, and wood handles are again seen. China crepe is a popular covering and pretty handles are made of white unpainted wood, with knots or rings of gold or silver hammered on.

A great novelty is a new French bonnet made of one piece of velvet. There is a soft crown, and the velvet is filled in very close all around. The trim is simply of this velvet, double and odd bunched into an artistic design at one side. This is turned back to frame the face and hair, and is adjusted according to the fancy of the wearer.

SULLIVAN IS CHAMPION.

BOSTON'S PRIDE DEFATS JAKE KILRAIN.

The Fight at Richmond, Miss., and Lasted Through Seventy-Five Rounds.

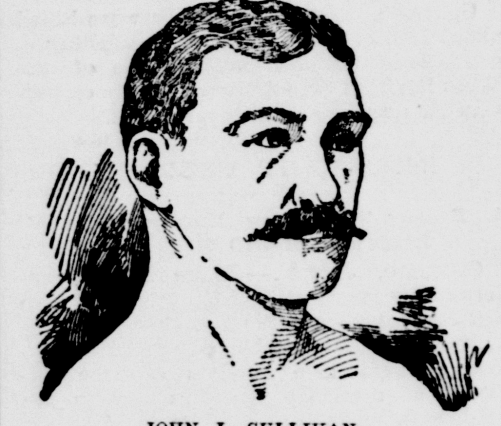

Kilrain Unable to Stand Sullivan's Blows, Resorts to Sprinting Tactics to Tire Him Out.

Sullivan Comes Out of the Fight Fresh, While His Opponent is Badly Used Up.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 9.—Sullivan has again demonstrated his right to the championship of the world, and is king of the fistic arena. At Richmond, Miss., he defeated Jake Kilrain in two hours and a half in a brilliant fight, and when the sponge was thrown up he walked out of the ring as unconcerned as if he had only been tossing the ball with Muldoon. It was the fight of his life, and it is doubtful if any man will ever claim the championship at his hands until he is again voted a broken-down man by the fighters who envy him his proud position and his title.

The ring was fitted up as no ring ever was before, in amphitheater style, and the press had desks and tables with stools and a large, roomy inclosure. Three thousand husky men were there, and in cheering and jeering fully used up their $15 freewillings. The sheriff was there to stop it, and he was taken care of much as the Indiana marshals were taken care of down at Hammond, except that the price was higher. Kilrain wanted to fight, so did Sullivan. John said he didn't care if he was looked up if he licked Kilrain first, and Jake said he could stand it if Sullivan could.

Jake's fighting shoes were lost for awhile, and he gamely declared he would fight in bare feet if they did not come; but they came, and after the usual conference between the leading sports, which always proceeds so ponderously, the two gladiators started for the ring.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

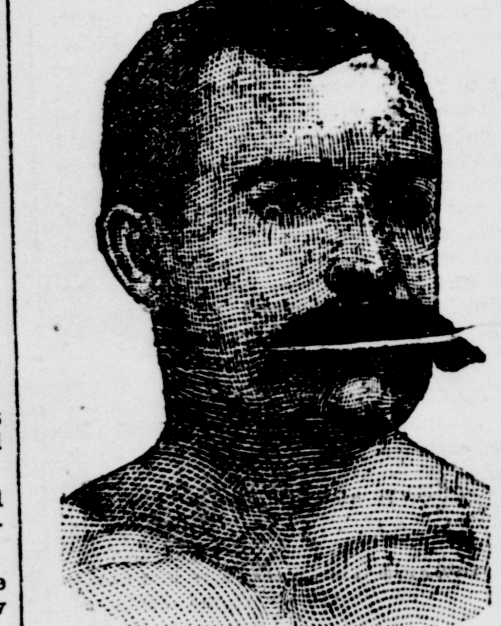

At the call of time Kilrain and Sullivan advanced to the center of the ring, the latter wearing a confident smile, Kilrain looking serious and the sport of the world's championship began.

Round 1—Kilrain immediately made a rush for Sullivan. Feinting with his left, he suddenly clinched Sullivan and threw him heavily to the turf, securing first honors and loud applause. Time, 1:15.

Round 2—Both men advanced promptly at the call of time, Sullivan immediately leading with his left, catching Kilrain heavily in the ribs. The men then clinched and Sullivan secured the second fall amid loud cheers from his partisan. Time, 2:30.

Round 3—Kilrain rushed Sullivan at once, clinching and catching the big fellow around the neck, but the latter immediately broke away and got in a short-arm blow on the neck. In this round Kilrain struck at least half a dozen apparently foul blows below the belt, which the referee from his position could not see, but which were greeted with hisses by the crowd, it appearing and being so proclaimed by Sullivan's friends, that Kilrain wanted to lose on a foul. The round closed by Kilrain going down from a light blow on the neck.

Round 4—Both men sparred cautiously for an opening. Kilrain, after one or two feints on the part of Sullivan, rushed in, and Sullivan, securing a cross-buttock hold, tried to throw the Baltimore boy, but he broke away and landed a stinger on Sullivan's jaw. Both men then sparred cautiously, Kilrain succeeding in getting in a light blow on Sullivan's neck. The round, which was in favor of Kilrain, ended by the latter falling to avoid punishment.

JAKE KILRAIN.

Round 5—Sullivan opened with a feint with his left, upon which Kilrain immediately retreated. Sullivan followed him up, and Kilrain made a vicious lunge at his head, which, however, fell short, and Sullivan swung his terrible right at his opponent's jugular, he too falling short, and Kilrain countered harmlessly on the neck. The round ended by Kilrain going down near his own corner, his aim appearing to be to avoid punishment, pursuing the same tactics adopted by his trainer, Mitchell, in his "foot race" in France.

Round 6—Sullivan commenced operations by landing heavily with his left on Kilrain's jaw. They then clinched and fell heavily, Sullivan on top. At the conclusion of this round Kilrain was carried to his corner, while Sullivan walked to his unassisted. Time, 2:00.

Round 7—Both men sparred cautiously for an opening, but soon clinched and indulged in some sharp short-arm work. Sullivan landed in three or four good ones on Sullivan's ribs and a sharp right-hander on Sullivan's right ear, drawing the blood. First blood was secured and allowed to Kilrain. Time, 1:30.

Round 8—Sullivan came up bleeding from the cut on his ear, having the appearance of an enraged bull. He immediately rushed at Kilrain, and after a few passes succeeded in breaking down his guard, sending Kilrain to the grass with a heavy right-hander in the mouth. First knock-down claimed and allowed for Sullivan. Kilrain prolonged cheers from his admirers. Time, 2:00.

Round 9—Was very quiet. Kilrain slipped down to escape punishment. Time, 1:00.

Round 10—As Kilrain showed no disposition to come to the center of the ring, Sullivan impatiently exclaimed: "Stand up and fight like a man. I'm not a printer. I'm a fighter." As soon as Kilrain came near him Sullivan made pass, but it fell short, and Kilrain countered on his stomach, his blows evidently lacking force and doing Sullivan no apparent damage. Sullivan made a rush at Kilrain, when the latter turned and hugged him, both being against the ropes. The big fellow here got in some light blows on Kilrain's ribs, which at this time resembled some what the corner or raw neck steak. Then they clinched, Kilrain throwing Sullivan and falling heavily on top of him. Time, 2:40.

Round 11—Sullivan opened with his left, which Kilrain neatly countered, Sullivan landing a light one on Kilrain's neck, following it with a vicious blow, which Kilrain ducked, the latter rushing and hugging Sullivan. The boy from Boston was now blowing quite hard and Kilrain got in an ugly under-cut on Sullivan's ribs. Sullivan returned got in a good one on Kilrain's neck which staggered him. The big fellow then planted a heavy one on Kilrain's neck. The latter retreating, Sullivan followed him up, endeavoring to land one of his terrible knock-out blows, and succeeded finally in gaining a square knock-down by a right hander in the neck. At the termination of this round Sullivan did not even take his seat, while Kilrain appeared to be very much distressed. Time, 3:00.

Round 12—Sullivan started this round by hugging Sullivan, the latter breaking away and getting in a good left-hander on Kilrain's neck. Kilrain proved a tricky fighter, evading successfully Sullivan's right-hand swings for a knock-out. Spot, clinching Sullivan and attempting to throw him, but without success. The round ended by the men falling heavily, Sullivan on top, his left arm being over his opponent's throat, Kilrain having been carried to his corner, evidently in distress. Time, 2:00.

Round 13—Sullivan succeeded in landing lightly on Kilrain's ribs, the latter countering on his stomach. Kilrain during this round spiked Sullivan in one of his feet, causing it to bleed quite profusely, and about a hour which would have been a foul had it taken effect. Sullivan got in some telling blows on Kilrain's ribs and chest, Kilrain countering on the neck with a blow which staggered Sullivan, but did not seem to cause much damage. Kilrain, in subsequent interchanges, went down to avoid punishment. Time, 2:00.

Round 14—Sullivan appeared very cool, while Kilrain retreated, Sullivan in vain attempting to land on his opponent's jugular with any effect. The round closed in a clinch, Sullivan slipping and falling under the ropes. Time, 2:00.

Round 15—Kilrain again resorted to his sprinting tactics, Sullivan exclaiming: "Come and fight!" Kilrain made a pass at Sullivan's stomach, Sullivan avoiding it and planting a rounder on Kilrain's ribs. Sullivan made another vicious lunge, which Kilrain dodged, and he, in turn, rushed Sullivan against the ropes, but effected no damage. Sullivan hooked Kilrain into the latter's corner and landed a vicious blow at Kilrain, which the latter avoided and then ran away. Sullivan again appealed to the referee to induce Kilrain to play the music, saying: "Why can't you fight like a man?" Kilrain rushed at Sullivan, the latter countering right and left and landing on Kilrain's ribs and jaw. Sullivan tried to land a hard one, which Kilrain avoided by rushing in and clinching, Sullivan planting short-arm blows on the neck and ribs. Both men indulged in short-arm blows, Sullivan playing for the neck and Kilrain falling to avoid punishment.

Round 16—Kilrain led, planted a rounder on Sullivan's ribs, and retreated, Sullivan remarking: "You fight just like Mitchell." Both sparred cautiously, Kilrain leading and landing on Sullivan's stomach. Some lively interchanges followed, Kilrain breaking away and promoting around the ring out of Sullivan's reach. A clinch followed, Sullivan throwing Kilrain.

Round 17—Sullivan feinted and Kilrain dodged clear across the ring. They again clinched, both falling, Kilrain landing on Sullivan's chest before the fall, drawing the purple. Time, 2:00.

Round 18—Kilrain appeared with the blood trickling down his cheek. Kilrain feinted, Sullivan trying to counter, and Kilrain slipped and fell, being struck, Sullivan claiming a foul, which, however, was not allowed. Time, 2:30.

Round 19—Kilrain rushed in and hugged Sullivan, the latter saying: "You are no fighter; you are a wrestler." Kilrain landed on Sullivan's ribs and then retreated around the ring, Sullivan following and planting a blow on Kilrain's ribs which could be heard all over the inclosure. Kilrain landed lightly on Sullivan's ribs and then went down from a light blow. Time, 2:00.

Rounds 20 to 23—Kilrain's tactics seemed to be to avoid punishment falling at the slightest blow. In the 20th round Kilrain landed on Sullivan's stomach and then rushed in and threw his antagonist. In the 22d round Kilrain demanded of the referee that he make Kilrain fight.

Round 24—Kilrain landed on Sullivan's breast, and the latter remarked, "I'm not hurt," and immediately by a heavy blow on Kilrain's ribs, Sullivan forcing him all over the ring and finally knocking Kilrain down in his (Sullivan's) corner, landing quickly on the mouth, chest, and neck. Time, 1:00.

Rounds 25 to 43—Kilrain continued to retreat around the ring, failing to avoid punishment. Round 44—As soon as he reached the center of the ring Sullivan began, vaulting freely, and it looked as if his stomach was weakening. Kilrain asked him to make the fight a draw, but Sullivan refused and responded with a heavy blow on Kilrain's ribs, knocking him down.

Round 45—Sullivan smashed Kilrain in the ribs, then landed on his jaw, knocking him down and stamping on him. A loud claim of foul was not allowed.

Rounds 46 to 49 were repetitions of previous ones, Kilrain falling to avoid Sullivan's belated hammer blows.

Round 50—Sullivan led viciously, Kilrain returning lightly and running away, Sullivan following and begging Kilrain to fight. The latter went down from a slight blow. The seconds of Kilrain knew their man must lose after this round unless a chance blow could save him. Sullivan, although slightly winded, was able to deliver a hammer blow and Kilrain was gradually becoming weaker. His blows had no strength in them, and his left side was evidently giving him considerable pain. He uttered his usual tactics of retreat. Continued on 2d page.

Mrs. [Ballard Comes to Janesville Last Evening in SEARCH OF HER HUSBAND.

He Agreed to Meet Her at Clinton Last Saturday but Failed to Appear.

A lady was noticed on the streets yesterday afternoon, who seemed to be very much excited about something. She went to the law office of J. W. Bates, and later in the day the lawyer and lady were seen driving up Milwaukee street in great haste.

Something evidently was in the wind, but nothing definite could be ascertained.

In the evening the young lady went to the Park house to obtain lodging for the night. By this time her heart was completely broken and she wept like a child.

"I am not as happy as I was when I stopped here three months ago," said the lady, and with this she buried her face in her hands and would not speak for some minutes.

It seems that the lady's name is Mrs. Ballard. She was married to a Mr. Ballard, who resides near Evansville, last April, they came to Janesville on their wedding tour and stopped at the Park house.

Everything was bright and happy as it always is for a time. About a month ago Mr. Ballard began to dispose of his personal property as fast as possible for the purpose of obtaining money so that he could remove with his young wife to Oklahoma.

On July 4th, Mrs. Ballard went to Clinton to visit relatives. Mr. Ballard was to join her here and they were to start west the first of the week.

On Saturday evening a party was to be held at the home of their relatives in Clinton at which Mrs. Ballard wished her husband to be present. She accordingly telegraphed him, but received no answer. She telegraphed again, with the same result. Then she wrote a letter, but could hear nothing.

Yesterday afternoon she took the train to this city in hopes that she might meet him here, and when he did not arrive on the train last evening, she was completely heartbroken.

The proprietor of the Park house and his wife have done all in their power for the unfortunate lady.

This morning Mrs. Ballard's attorney, J. W. Bates, Esq., hired a rig and took her to Milton to see her brother, who is a blacksmith at that village, but he had neither seen nor heard anything of her husband.

They went from Milton to the home of Mr. Ballard's parents, near Evansville. These people appear to know nothing of his whereabouts.

Mrs. Ballard says that her husband probably has between $1,000 and $1,500, and she thinks it possible that he has been robbed and foully dealt with. But this seems very improbable.

Mrs. Ballard is a young lady of fine appearance, well educated, and if she does not succeed in finding her husband will very likely never fully recover from the shock.

EVEN BETTER THAN THE FIRST.

THE DEDICATORY CONCERT REPEATED AT THE GERMAN LUTHERAN CHURCH.

The auditorium of the German Lutheran church was well filled last evening with an audience composed of people from all denominations.

The concert given on Sunday evening was repeated last night with even better success than before.

This event has cost both the director, Professor Zineck and the choir much time and hard work. But if success is any remuneration, they have all been well compensated for the trouble.

Much praise is also due Pastor E. Baeses, of Clinton, and Mrs. Pastor Wildermuth, of Edgerton, for their assistance in these concerts.

The German Lutheran Society is one of our best church organizations in the city. It has grown from a small society until the Sunday audiences now completely fill the church.

The new pipe organ is a valuable addition to the musical facilities of the church, and the pastor of this society paid to a Gazette reporter last evening that it was substantially all paid for.

THE OTHER SIDE.

MORE ABOUT THE TOWN OF ROCK SCHOOL.

TO THE EDITOR,

I find an article in your issue of July 1st, headed, "The Board Sustained or Settling of a school difficulty in the town of Rock."

It appears that your correspondent must be somewhat ignorant of the facts in the case, and in order that he may be more thoroughly enlightened, I trust you will permit me to reply through your columns.

First, as to the cause of the difficulty your correspondent says that a seventeen year old boy took exception to the rules by which the school has been governed for the past six years. In this we think he is very much mistaken. There is not nor never has been any exceptions taken to the rules posted in the school room. The rules to which exceptions were taken were new ones this most successful teacher tried to adopt and enforce which I will give as follows:

1st. All pupils are requested to sit in the end of their seat and sit up straight.

2d. They were not allowed to lean over enough to see to withdraw books from the shelf underneath the desk when necessary to change.

3d. At noon and recess they must remain in their seats when in the school room.

In a letter from the state superintendent, he says it does not seem possible that a teacher in this day of practical education would adopt and enforce rules which forbid pupils to move scarcely a muscle during the session. It does not seem either that the majority of a school board would sustain a teacher in such rigid discipline. Now the rules mentioned are the ones which the boy and his father took exception to.

Parents became dissatisfied with such discipline, and the father of the boy told him that he should comply with everything reasonable, but if he wished to change his position he should do so and if he wished to lean over to see to change books he should do so.

From the verified statement or affidavit of this teacher I find the following: The seats in the school room are double but in most cases only occupied by one pupil. I assigned the seats to my liking and expected the pupils to occupy the seat I indicated. It is my custom when I see them in or toward the middle of the seat to speak to them or motion them to sit on the end of the seat. She says also that Jan. 10th, the boy in question was sitting in the middle of the seat. I spoke to him telling him to sit on the end. He acted as if he had not heard, I spoke to him again and upon his looking up I asked him if he heard what I said. He replied: Yes ma'am; I will obey you in anything reasonable but not in such rules, my father said I needn't. I expelled him and reported the matter to the clerk of the board. Now as we refer to the affidavit of the district board we find the following:

Just we hereby fully sustain the teacher in her action in the matter. The facts of this case, as given by the teacher, are true and correct, and we sustain her action in expelling the pupil, with allate and pencil, and not disturbing any one. And the law only authorizes the school board to expel a pupil, and that only when the good of the school absolutely requires it. But in this case the teacher did the expelling and the school board did not further than to sustain her in an unlawful action.

The parent thinking that he had been unjustly treated, referred the matter to the county superintendent, who called at his home, when he positively stated that he had no authority to go back of district boards. The parents then decided to appeal to the state superintendent. Evidence was sent from both sides.

Your correspondent says: who also sustained all of the former decisions and actions in the matter.

Let us examine the decision of the state superintendent, who we will now quote. He says the teacher makes a statement of the case which does not materially differ in the main facts from that made by the appellant. He also says that the counsel to disbelieve the held injudicious and untrue.

He says "the issue was made on a weak and indefensible regulation, obedience to which ought to have been secured, if at all, by the most refined and skillful will and pride of appearance on the part of pupils. He says the expulsion of a pupil from a public school is a serious matter. The law authorizes this to be done only in cases where the good of the school requires it. No trivial offense or one which ought to be corrected by the tact, judgment and good sense of the teacher can justify such an extreme measure. It is the last resort for incorrigible and unmanageable pupils. In this case there appears to have been no earnest and judicious effort to interest the pupil in cooperating with the teacher and other pupils in securing the end sought through the regulations. The expulsion was a hasty, impulsive and unjustifiable act; a wise and judicious teacher would have endeavored to correct the trouble by other means. The refusal of which has brought up the issue as it may seem a spite act by a majority of the school board against the district for which there was an effort made to change the school. But Mr. W. H. Tripp, through the most strenuous effort, succeeded in getting a majority of the votes cast, while his opponent, Mr. Lott Swan was also supported by a majority of the most refined and skillful of the community; also by the nearest neighbors of Mr. Tripp and the parents of the children comprising the greater portion of the school. After giving this explanation, it is to be hoped that this disturbance may cease to exist.
